

8.2 Conclusion

The project demonstrates that a script-controlled ACL can restrict record access based on a field value. By combining the Branch field with group membership, only authorised users can view EEE records. This approach provides fine-grained data security beyond role-based access control.